Life related anecdotes, education related with words limit- 1500 words

1. Features (Articles from Faculty Members):

Faculty members can contribute articles on various topics related to education, research, or personal experiences. Unlike regular news stories, features delve deep into the human experience, emotions, and storytelling to connect with readers on a personal level. They can cover various styles, such as human interest stories, lifestyle features, interview pieces, and more. If you're writing one, remember to combine facts with opinions, use descriptive language, and create a strong narrative.

2. Travelogue:

Share your travel experiences, adventures, and insights. Engage readers with vivid descriptions and captivating narratives. A travelogue is a written account of a traveler's experiences, often describing the destinations visited, the people encountered, and the cultural insights gained. It goes beyond mere factual reporting and combines storytelling with informative aspects of travel writing. Travelogues allow readers to explore the world through the eyes of the traveler, capturing the spirit of different locales and offering a taste of distant places from the comfort of their own homes. These narratives can be rich in emotional depth, historical context, or personal reflections.

3. Poem:

Express your creativity through poetry. Themes can vary from nature to emotions and beyond. It should not be satirical on politics, ethnicity of the country.

4. For Students (Article):

Students can write articles on academic subjects, personal growth, or any other relevant topic, which does not hurt our national sentiments.

5. Story/ Fiction:

Craft engaging fictional or non-fictional stories. Let your imagination flow! But not against the national sentiments!

6. Practices, Innovative Ideas, Activities:

Share innovative teaching practices, classroom activities, or educational ideas.

7. By Teachers or Parents:

Teachers and parents can contribute articles related to education, parenting, or school-related experiences.

8. Current Topics Theme:

Write about contemporary issues, trends, or events that impact education, society, or students.

9. Illustrations and Photographs:

Include original illustrations or photographs related to the theme, event at school or institution. Anecdotes from real-life experiences can enhance your content.

Originality and Plagiarism: Originality is the hall mark of the magazine. The entire theme should be original, not copied or translated from any source.

Remember to adhere to these guidelines and contribute thoughtfully.

Happy Writing!
